BIBB ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT ONE OF TWO FINALISTS FOR NATIONAL AWARD

November 26, 2018

(MACON, GA) – Dr. Tanzy Kilcrease, Assistant Superintendent for Teaching and Learning for the Bibb County School District, has been named one of two finalists for a 2019 Women in School Leadership Award. The honor, presented by The School Superintendents Association (AASA), is intended to recognize “active, front-line female administrators” in particular categories, with Dr. Kilcrease being chosen as a finalist for the Central Office/Principal Award.

“A critical component of AASA’s mission is to help talented women educators strengthen their professional skills, build networks, and bring teaching and learning to new levels in their respective districts,” said Daniel A. Domenech, AASA’s executive director, in a news release. “This award showcases these exceptional educators and applauds the outstanding work they’re doing.”

Dr. Kilcrease has been an educator for 26 years and has been an assistant superintendent in Bibb County since 2015. She will find out if she’s won this prestigious award at the AASA National Conference in Los Angeles on Feb. 14-16, 2019.
